AIB Publications – Estimating guide

AIB Estimating guide

The Guide To Estimating Practice has been developed by the Australian Institute of Building (AIB) to provide an authoritative standard for good practice in estimating building work and to ensure that estimating practices within the building industry reflect current technologies and structures.

For those reviewing their tender preparation processes, this guide provides a useful review of costing fundamentals.

This guide also provides a valuable reference text for building students studying estimating and cost control at tertiary level.

This is the sixth edition and previous editions have proved to be of value to those engaged in the design, estimating and construction of building projects by providing a standard and detailed reference to estimating procedures.

The publication is available in soft-cover and is ninety pages in length.

The price is $27.50 each ($38.50 for non-members) which includes GST, postage and handling within Australia. Please note a postage surcharge of $7.50 is added to the total cost for overseas orders.

AIB Publications – History of the institute

History of AIB

When the Australian Institute of Building (AIB) turned fifty in 2001, it was only appropriate that a book be produced to document the development of both the Institute and the building profession.

Entitled To Provide A Joint Conscience – A Jubilee History of the Australian Institute of History the book provides an excellent record of AIB's development, the personalities that made a lasting contribution and the achievements from the establishment of the first university course in building and construction management through to the creation of the National Building Professionals Register (NBPR).

For those with an interest in the role that building professions can play in changing the building profession today, this book is an invaluable resource and source of motivation.

This publication is an excellent book to leave in the reception area of any building and construction firm.

The price is $38.50 each ($48.50 for non-members) which includes GST, postage and handling within Australia. Please note a postage surcharge of $7.50 is added to the total cost for overseas orders.

AIB Publications – Uni & Industry experience

University & Industry experience

In this suite of two documents brought together under the Industry Based Experience Heading assess the aims of workplace experience as part of university undergraduate studies, with a particular emphasis on building and construction management courses.

The first of the two publications with the subtitle Theory takes an analytical review of the purpose of industry based experience, its benefits, how it should be structured and the roles of respective parties. It addresses both the problems and benefits of industry based experience.

The second of these publications combines the Handbooks for students, university mentors and employers providing practical guidance on working with students undertaking an industry placement as part of their tertiary studies.

The publications are sold together and each is approximately fifty pages in length.

The price is $22.00 per set ($33.00 for non-members) which includes GST, postage and handling within Australia. Please note a postage surcharge of $7.50 is added to the total cost for overseas orders.
